Description

This powerful and richly coloured landscape is a particularly fine and characteristic examples of Suddaby’s output during World War II, when his brooding landscapes and records of rural and farming life on the home front captured the public imagination and made him a fixture of the London art scene.The present work may correspond with the watercolour ‘Evening Landscape’, shown as no. 29 in the exhibition ‘Recent Paintings by Rowland Suddaby’ at the Leger Gallery, London, from 7th to 27th January 1943.
